PREFATORY NOTE

This is the third compilation that has been published of the theses that have been written at Atlanta University. The first number in this series came out in 1944. It listed the masters' essays that were accepted by the University between the years 1931, when the then newly-established graduate school awarded its first degree, and 1942. The second publication carried the listings through 1947. The present work begins with 1948 and includes all titles that were successfully submitted up to and through the convocations of 1953.

The University at present awards earned degrees only at the master's level.

A compilation of this sort is, of course, useful as a record. It tells interested scholars and institutions what we have here and provides the basis for inter-library loans of studies that are yet unpublished. This booklet, also, may indicate something of the scope and nature of the research that is taking place at the University—at least, on the student plane.

The author and subject indexes, it is hoped, will aid the reader in quickly finding what he is looking for.

The range of subjects and their distributions by departments are highly suggestive. Along with other factors, of course, we are thus able to get some impressions as to the scholarly interests and activities of the University's graduate students.

We are thankful to Mrs. Gaynelle W. Barksdale, A M in L S and Edward B Miller, M S in L S, for producing this present compilation. They did it after hours and at odd moments sandwiched in between their regular duties as Reference Librarian and Periodicals Librarian, respectively, of the Trevor Arnett Library. Despite their extreme carefulness, we expect that some mistakes have been made in putting together so many separate entries. We ask both the authors cited and the readers of this pamphlet to remember, please that any and all errors are unintentional.
