Dr. and Mrs. Vivian Wilson Henderson

Conferring Honorary degree upon Mr. Merner

Dr. Henderson talks with some of the members of the year book staff

A man with vision and foresight, a man with ability for planning, a man with initiative for successful completion, Dr. Vivian Wilson Henderson is acknowledged throughout the nation as a top college administrator, an economist, and as a vivacious, helpful person.

It was no easy task finding a president or accepting the responsibility of such a job. Dr. Henderson's activities, however, during his first year as president of our institution have exemplified his leadership qualities and experience.

Born in Bristol, Tennessee, Dr. Henderson received his B.S.C. degree from State University of Iowa. Having teaching and administrative positions at Prairie View and North Carolina Colleges and Fisk University, he acted as Director of the Institute on Economic Education, Fisk University.

Dr. Henderson's versatility, however, takes him to many activities other than teaching and administrating. He has contributed many articles to recent publications including the "Wall Street Journal" and II Observatore. His research activities include those on the economic status of Negroes, economic development of the South, and improvement upon the teaching of economics. Presently serving as a member of the fourteen Man Task Force, appointed by Secretary of Labor Wirtz, our president has certainly made his contribution to our society.

Behind every successful man is a woman. The former Anna Powell is the woman behind Dr. Vivian W. Henderson. A gentle, pretty lady from Bryan, Texas, Mrs. Henderson has moved gracefully into the role of Clark College's First Lady. Her gracious attendance at both civic and social functions has been an attribute to the Clark College family.

Clark College has a rich heritage and high standards. With Dr. and Mrs. Vivian W. Henderson as our leaders, our heritage will become even richer and her standards will reach even greater heights.
